

Crawshaw Moss, Ilkley Moor (Swindles, unpublished)

Showing the final phase of woodland clearance (alder decline) and its replacement by upland heathland vegetation dominated by heather, other ericaceous, and sedge species from the Iron Age to the present day. Grasses and bracken are abundant throughout the period

