The vision aims for growth leaves room for uncertainties including conflicts between growth and environmental factors such as loss of greenbelt. The overall approach seeks to promote urban development of brown field sites but there is little brown field land left available in Ilkley. There has been little improvement of the town centre infrastructure for roads, rail and drainage which all cause considerable concern in any proposed development. The Environment Agency report that the drainage system is overloaded now without any further housing development.

The Amec report highlights suggested word amendments which are a very significant factor for Ilkley.

SC3 Less emphasis should be placed on the road network but it is the lack of any real improvement in the road network that causes Ilkley a real problem. The villages of Addingham and Burley both have bypasses and they squeeze all the traffic through Ilkley. An alternative bridge over the river at Ben Rhydding would go some way to help those residents who live on the north side of the town and would also help reduce the number of heavily laden farm vehicles who have to use the New Brook Street bridge in the town centre. (A new bridge would also serve the villages of Langbar, Middleton, Denton and Askwith which are all in north Yorkshire so consultation is necessary with that County). This does not seem to be proposed in the Core Strategy. Bus services are continually being curtailed and rail services are constrained by single track working. The private motorist who needs to reach a place of employment faces daily traffic problems. There appears to be no proposal to create any cycle ways or public footpaths.
